

FEATURE FRIDAY

BISHOP ANSTEY HIGH SCHOOL EAST

"The race is not for the swiftest but for those who can endure"

Sumayah Murray, a fifth form student of Bishop Anstey High School East (BAHSE), has recently attained the role of deputy head girl. Although this is Sumayah's first official leadership role, she has quickly grown accustomed to her responsibility as deputy head girl.

Sumayah works alongside head girl, Raynell Ramatali, and the rest of the prefect body to maintain order amongst the students at BAHSE. She plays a significant role in building and maintaining a bridge between the teachers and students in order for harmony to prevail.

Sumayah currently studies Mathematics, English A, Biology, Chemistry, Spanish, French, Geography and Principles of Business. She is not quite sure what career path she would like to pursue in the future, but we can all agree that she is on the pathway to success.

Samayah has looked up to many people as sources of inspiration over the years. Powerful female figures like Maya Angelou and Michelle Obama continue to inspire her to strive for excellence in everything that she does and become her own woman of brilliance.

Sumayah Murray

Sumayah aspires to inspire her classmates through acts of kindness. She believes that it's the small things that make a big difference in this world. Regardless of her position, Murray constantly encourages those around her to push through all difficulties and keep the faith. She highlights that without her faith, she would not be able to accomplish many of the things she has done thus far in her journey.

For the students hoping to become head girl in the future, Sumayah stresses the importance of balance. She believes that it is crucial to find the equilibrium between duties and academics, as both prove to be vital in internal development and self growth. She makes it known that one should always be open to mistakes and learning from them. "It's a learning experience, we're all human and we do make mistakes." To her fellow students, Sumayah hopes that you continue to follow the rules and be kind to one another.
